

Paris Polytechnic School; PhD economics on international project financing

Finance expert for about 30 years, as:

- Independent consultant for large groups; board of directors of several companies; strategic planning, successful realization of projects and financings
- General manager of service companies; international development by M&A or JV
- Various positions in international banks; large project financings

At the beginning of the present century and inspired by his personal history, conception of SubmaRiver, disruptive, albeit down-to-earth, innovation for transportation of water in large quantities and over long distances by an underwater flexible pipe SubmaFlex, principally aimed at solving agricultural water needs; establishment of Via Marina, initial patents, first developments with individual partners, strategic alliance with Vinci Group, initial commercial contacts.

Now, 64, he is at liberty to continue the innovative development of Via Marina in a way that can ensure its certain success.
